County CD Notes Alert Success

Officials See Herter Tough As Dulles

WASHINGTON (UPI)—High officials predicted today the Russians, and U.S. Allies as well, would find Christian A. Herter just as tough a cold war negotiator as his predecessor, cancer-stricken John Foster Dulles.

The assessment came in the wake of a State Department blast last night against some segments of the British Press. These newspapers allegedly pictured Herter, 64-year-old Massachusetts politician-diplomat, as a man who could be bossed by U.S. admirals and generals.

President Eisenhower is expected to appoint Herter secretary of state shortly possibly today.

Good Evening!

It won't be long—vacationtime.

We know a lot of fellows who'd like to hop a plane and be on their way today. Some of these outdoor work schedules dreamed up by the little woman real discouraging.

No wonder we need bigger and better scientists. Nobody's yet invented grass that doesn't need clipped, weeds that don't grow, flower-beds that dig themselves.

Suburbia wonderful.

Our Phillies looked like champs last night as they shacked the Reds, 5-1 with 12 hits and could be they'll do the same or better today.

And Arnold Palmer and Freddie Haas neck-and-neck in that $30,000 Housatonic classic and we've a little hunch this is one for the Pennsylvania boy.

Civil Defense alert yesterday generally termed a success — by the Civil Defense people who operated it.

We dunno. The country's been kicking this Civil Defense program around for better than a decade and the country still doesn't have a program that would serve any purpose what-so-ever in event of an attack.

Like we've said many times before, Uncle Sam had better start over again by being realistic about Civil Defense, getting some real leadership for it, spending some real money and legislating some real laws.

Eisenhower expected to name Undersecretary Christian Herter as Secretary of State today.

Nobody better qualified and the sooner, Mr. Herter is clothed in full authority the better.

If you can't save anything, you can at least try to run into debt as slowly as possible.

Take a tip from a fish. When he keeps his mouth shut he doesn't get hooked.

Watch your driving during the weekend.

Go to church tomorrow.

Few Hitches Reported In Area

From early indications at Bucks County Civil Defense headquarters in Doylestown, the county's participation in the nationwide air raid alert was smooth and successful.

The favorable report was given by J. Russell Fell, county CD executive administrator, after an all-clear at 1:36 p.m. and a radio roll call closed the drill.

The orders from state Civil Defense headquarters were received by the bell-and-light receiver in the county CD office in the court house basement. Radios of the county fire radio network and Radio Amateur Civil Emergency Service conveyed the warning to the 50 political subdivisions of the county, with telephones used when radio contact was not possible.

1,000 CD Volunteers

Some 1,000 Civil Defense volunteers throughout the county, with police and firemen, carried out the drill stopping traffic and sending pedestrians to shelter from 1:26 to 1:36 p.m. The alert was received and passed on at 11:26 a.m. by the radio networks.

"Best Ever" "It was the best test we ever had," Bristol Borough Civil Defense Director Howard Boyd reports.

"For one thing, we were able to establish contact with the schools and other municipal buildings without the use of electric power," Boyd pointed out.

Besides a large compliment of Civil Defense volunteers, the Bristol CD utilized the personnel of the borough fire company, fire police and was aided by the police force.

Traffic in the borough was brought to a virtual standstill for the full ten minutes of the test, Boyd said.

"Partial Success" In Middletown Township, CD Director Mark Edwards called the test "a partial success." "There were two equipment failures," he said.

Meg Flooded With Invites

ROME (UPI) — Italian blue-bloods flooded the British Embassy today with invitations to wine and dine Princess Margaret during her visit here next week, but thus far she has agreed only to visit a racehorse.

Margaret, 23, turned down an invitation to visit the Rome palace of Count Ranieri De Campello, close friend of her ex-boy friend Peter Townsend, but she did accept that of Marquis Incisa to visit his stables to see the great racehorse Ribot.

The embassy said Queen Mother Elizabeth, who arrives with the princess Monday for a six-day visit, would accompany Margaret to the estate of the marquis on the northern outskirts of Rome. Margaret and her mother also will have an audience with Pope John XXIII next week and unveil a memorial to the British poet Lord Byron.

The princess will sandvich in one night on the town: when she takes over one of Rome's plushiest nightclubs, the Cabala, for a party Wednesday night.

More than 100 guests, including Margaret's old chum Judy Montague, were invited to the party, which could turn out to be an all-night affair.

Falls CD Sets Big Alert Today

The Falls Township CD unit participated in yesterday's alert, but today is the big one in that municipality.

Yesterday police stopped traffic on the roads and children took "duck and cover" protective measures in the schools during the 10-minute mock "nuclear attack," but today the unit moves into a full swing operation.

CAP Plans

Light airplanes from the Civil Air Patrol were scheduled to land on a blockaded section of Tyburn Road between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. A temporary hospital was set up in the William Penn Junior High School, Fairless Hills, and Boy Scouts acting as "casualties" were transported to the hospital by the rescue squads. Dr. William Cauffman, Levittown, is in charge of the hospital.

Township and State police participated in the drill.

Castro Scoring Personal Triumph

WASHINGTON (UPI)—American officials said today Fidel Castro has scored a personal triumph during the first days of his current U.S. visit, but has failed to state clearly his position on a number of issues, including alleged Communist infiltration in his Cuban government.

The bearded rebel leader, they said, seemed to create a favorable impression during a two-hour, five-minute earnest explanation of the Cuban situation before the American Society of Newspaper Editors (ASNE).

Despite his sincerity, these officials said, he avoided committing himself on a number of issues. Typical, they said, was Castro's answer to the question of Communist infiltration in Cuba.

Great Popular Success

The 32-year-old prime minister denied he or his "26th of July movement" was Communist but he declined to state flatly whether he would take sides in case of a war between the United States and the Soviet Union.

From the popular standpoint, Castro's unofficial visit to Washington was a great success.

His campaign hat, beard and open-neck green army fatigue uniform were a leading tourist attraction.

Yesterday more than 500 persons milled around the hotel where Castro spoke to the editors. Scores of tourists gathered around him and the Cuban Embassy and on Capitol Hill when he met for 90 minutes with Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Called To Stand

Only one of the 19 apparently was intended to be a witness for the Commonwealth. District Attorney called to the stand Mrs. Peggy Natalini, 28 Black Walnut Road, Levittown.

She said she bought a knitting machine from Santore and obtained yarn, to make slipperettes, which he was to purchase.

Mrs. Natalini said she made the slipperettes and sold them to the defendant for $9 a dozen pairs. She said she heard of the work opportunity through a handbill delivered to her mail box. The yarn was to be free for a month, she said. The witness said the trial.

Editors Rap News Curtain

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The American people aren't getting enough information from their government to form "intelligent judgments" about life-and-death issues of national defense, a leader of the American Society of Newspaper Editors (ASNE) said today.

Herbert Brucker, editor of the Hartford, Conn., Courant, and chairman of the ASNE's Freedom of Information Committee, made the statement in his annual report on the society's continuing battle for recognition of "the people's right to know."

Brucker's report and a panel discussion of trends in journalism education were the highlights of today's morning session of the editors. The three-day annual meeting of the ASNE will wind up tonight with a banquet addressed by Vice President Richard M. Nixon.

Also scheduled for today was election of officers for the coming year. J.R. Wiggins, executive editor of the Washington Post & Times-Herald, was expected to be chosen by the board of directors to succeed George M. Healy Jr., of the New Orleans Times-Picayune as ASNE president.

The trial of Frank Santore, Philadelphia associated with the National Garment Co. on Mill St., Bristol, last fall, was continued soon after it opened in Bucks County Court yesterday.

President Judge Edward G. Biester gave the continuance when the defense attorney and a woman witness disagreed as to whether she signed an agreement with Santore. The judge is trying the case without a jury.

Santore is charged with assigning work to be done at home without a permit from the Pennsylvania Department of Labor and Industry. Nineteen bills of indictment charge him with unlawfully assigning the work to that many persons.

26 Killed In Mexican Air Crash

MEXICALI, Mexico (UPI) — A twin-engine airliner en route to Mexico City crashed on the beach west of Guaymas, Mexico, Friday, killing all 26 persons aboard, including five Los Angeles residents and a Mexicali councilwoman.

Also dead was the pilot and general manager of the Tigres Voladores (fly tigers) of Mexico Airline, Jose Lopez Enriquez, 40, Mexico City.

Machinegun, Bazooka Fire Lead Assault

DEER LODGE, Mont. (UPI)—A 35-hour mutiny at Montana State Prison was broken today when National Guardsmen stormed the walls behind bazooka and machinegun fire to free 16 guards held as hostages.

The National Guard, 200 strong supported by more than 100 police and vigilantes, attacked the convict-held prison at 3:45 a.m. m.s.t. (5:45 a.m. e.s.t.) behind a barrage of bazooka shells, machineguns, rifle fire and tear gas shells.

Eight minutes later it was reported the 16 guards had been released unharmed.

Minutes before the attack police closed off all communications out of Deer Lodge. Police with drawn guns ordered Jack Bacon of United Press International to close down the telephone circuit to San Francisco, "or else!"

Raced Down Tunnel

The captives, freed after nearly 36 hours of terror-stricken captivity in a cell block, raced down the long tunnel to freedom. A reporter yelled from the corner of the prison, "Are you the hostages?"

"Yes, thank God," came the answer, "We made it man."

The attack on the stone-grey walls lasted only a minute. Then the hostages were released.

But some 30 mutineers who had held the prison since 4 p.m. Thursday refused to give up.

At 4:10 p.m., about 15 minutes after the attack, sporadic firing began again.

Spearheaded By Guards

Guardsmen firing bazookas were the spearhead of the attack. They rushed through the main gate and, once inside, blew a hole in the wall of the cell block where the guards were being held hostage. Before the rioters could gather their wits the hostages were streaming to safety.

With the sound of firing, heralding the long awaited attack, Bacon slipped back into the darkened private residence where United Press International had made its headquarters and placed a call to San Francisco in direct defiance to the authorities.

"The family here is frightened out of its wits," he whispered into the telephone. "Cops with drawn guns and guardsmen with bayonets."

Few Hitches Reported In CD Alert

lures that resulted in alert sirens not going off," Edwards said.

Part of the Middletown Township problem was the incomplete facilities that are in the new township building, Edwards said.

Edwards said that the CD workers were forced to move their radio equipment out of the new township building and set up the equipment again at the old township building.

Radio Installation

The Middletown CD director said there should be no recurrence of the communications problem once the radio installation is completed in the new building.

Edwards said traffic in the township stopped where there were CD and police officers on duty, but "otherwise kept on moving."

Alert "Satisfactory"

In Lower Southampton Township, Police Chief Edward F. Wunsch said motorists and pedestrians observed the raid signals when they sounded by either pulling over to the side of the road or by taking shelter.

Upper Southampton CD Director Norman Klein said that the alert went "very well." Klein said there were no violations during the alert.

Without Incident

Morrisville and Lower Makefield CD officials said their drills went off without incident. Take cover practices were held at the schools and there was no trouble on the roads with motorists who failed to obey "pull over" orders, they said.

Bensalem Police Chief William Riempp, township CD director, said the drill went off smoothly, except for one hitch. Motorists coming from Philadelphia didn't want to pull off the road when the alert sounded.

The chief said he ordered prowl cars to block Route 13 and Route 1 at the Philadelphia City Line until the "all clear" sounded. That maneuver was effective, the chief said.

The schools obeyed the siren signals and children took cover during the alert, he said.

Says Inadequate

Most Lower Bucks County CD units were satisfied with the results of the test, however, Bristol Township CD Director Clarence Bixler charged that the present air raid system is inadequate.

He said while the fire companies do an excellent job with their alarm system, it's too easy to confuse the air raid signals with actual fire alarms. Bixler said his seven years in CD work throughout the state has shown him that something is needed to distinguish the air raid alarm from a fire alarm.

He proposes that a system of large sirens be set up that could be heard all over the township or that air horns, similar to those used in industry, be used in place of fire sirens.

Bixler said the Federal government would pay half the cost for a CD alarm system. The other half would be paid for out of township funds, he said.

Momentary confusion reigned in Yardley during the mock alert when two fire sirens sounded to the take cover warning signal, and a Philadelphia truck driver was arrested for failing to heed the alert.

The alert was hindered when the truck driver, heading along Main St. into Yardley near Dolington Road, failed to pull to a halt on the side of the road.

Patrolman Lee Carroll of the Yardley Police ordered the driver to pull to the side of the road. Then the patrolman went further down the road to handle other matters. The truck driver, reportedly thought the siren meant he could go on his way.

He was arrested by Carroll and will receive a summons for failing to obey an officer of the law, it was reported.

The fires in the borough occurred at 1 p.m., at the Cold Springs Bleachery, and another at 1:10 p.m., was reported to be a grass fire. Both fires were minor, police said.

been held under duress as charged by Peiping. He accused the Reds of interfering in Tibetan affairs despite a 1951 agreement guaranteeing full autonomy to his ancient theocracy.

Buddhism is the predominant religion in Asia, and his words were expected to carry much weight in neutral nations that have been friendly with the Peiping regime. Already Buddhists in India, Ceylon, Burma, Indonesia and Viet Nam have protested Peiping's actions.

The Dalai Lama delayed disclosing whether he would establish a government-in-exile or seek international sanctions against Red China. He said he would not make his plans until he had been able to rest and reflect.

Time Was

The Rev. and Mrs. Philip Weiss were snapped in this picture taken in Trenton on their wedding day 25 years ago. The couple celebrated their anniversary at a surprise party at Rev. Weiss' church last week.

Time Now

Rev. and Mrs. Philip Weiss share an anniversary cake at a surprise party given to them at the Oxford Valley Chapel Community Church to celebrate 25 years of marriage.

Members Surprise Pastor With Party

Nostalgia reigned supreme when members of the Oxford Valley Chapel Community Church in Levittown surprised the Rev. and Mrs. Philip Weiss with a party on their 25th wedding anniversary recently.

Among the church members participating were 10 members who were at the first sermon delivered by Rev. Weiss 14 years ago when the small Oxford Valley church opened its doors to a new minister.

"The church was built in 1899," Rev. Weiss recalls "but to me it was a new adventure."

Served Faithfully From that day to this, Rev. Weiss has served at the small Oxford Valley Church.

A native of Easton, Rev. Weiss became a minister after working for DeLaval Steam Turbine Company in Trenton.

The church was an old building 14 years ago, a one story wooden structure in a heavily rural area. Two years ago, Rev. Weiss moved his church to the Twin Oaks section of Levittown. "The new building has a basement and is made of cinder block and brick. It's quite a change from the first building we had when I came to the church."

Pascoe Petition Given To Court

A petition to appoint Rowland Pascoe as constable for the Fourth Ward of Bristol Borough has been submitted to Bucks County Court, signed by 18 Fourth Ward residents. He would succeed Robert J. Coles, who resigned Monday.

Lawrence Safety Measures Designed To Save Lives

Arrests May Increase On State's Roads

HERSHEY, Pa. (UPI) — Gov. David L. Lawrence told the 10th anniversary meeting of the Pennsylvania Association for Safety Education here last night that his highway safety program was not one of prosecution but of prevention.

He said the two separate highway safety measures before the General Assembly were "meant to be severe."

"This highway safety program is not designed to save licenses. It is designed to save lives," Lawrence said, and then added that he admitted it was a "program of arrests."

"But I assure you that we are not as interested in arresting individuals as we are in arresting the bloodshed on our highways," he said.

Lawrence, who lost two sons in a highway accident, said he was sure he could rely on the association to support his program and then promised "complete cooperation on the part of this administration in every program which will help to make Pennsylvania a safer state."

One of the programs now before the General Assembly would institute a point system similar to those now in operation in Connecticut, Illinois and New Jersey. The other is more severe, with license suspensions on first offenses in some cases.

"The citizen must be made to realize that there is only a fraction of a second between life and death when he is behind the wheel of a car," Lawrence said. "To make the driver realize this must be our constant goal."

Units Study Park Area

Plans to develop a park area along Queen Ann Creek are being considered by the Middletown Township Park and Recreation Board and the Cobalt Civic Association.

Landscaping plans for the development of the area, a half-mile long, 40-yard wide strip have been turned over to the township by the Levittown firm for recreational purposes.

The landscaping plans presented by Paul Reiff and Robert Latomus included the planting of trees along the creek area.

Civic Association members are studying a proposal to attempt to eliminate the practice of residents leaving disabled automobiles on streets for long periods of time.

The organization is ready to resume the sale of fire extinguishers to area home owners.

All township primary election candidates from both the Republican and Democratic parties are being invited to the civic group's next meeting on Tuesday night, May 5, 8 p.m. at the Levittown No. 2 Fire Hall.

Oakford Man Found Dead

William E. Wiedecke, 60, was found dead of a gun shot wound through his left temple at 7:20 p.m. yesterday. He was found in his trailer home at 4427 Elk Ave., Oakford by a neighbor.

Coroner Thomas Lamb ruled the death a suicide. He said Wiedecke, left a note explaining he was in pain. The note said Wiedecke, a tool and die worker at the Ternstedt Division of General Motors, Trenton, couldn't sleep at night.

He was suffering from a heart condition. "There is no use for me to be with all of you anymore," the note read.

Patrolman Frank Wolanink, of Bensalem Township Police, reported the victim left another note containing a will and instructions.

"He made extensive preparations," Wolanink said.

Wolanink said no one heard the shot. He said it was believed Wiedecke shot himself at 6 p.m. His body was not found until 7:20 p.m. A hi-fi-radio set was playing loudly and probably covered the sound of the shot, Wolanink said.

ettes ordered us all out of the area."

"Shortly after we were herded into the street," Bacon said, "I heard a 'boom-boom' that could only mean bazookas. Then the machine guns opened up followed by the rifle fire. I raced back into the house and put through the call."

"A few minutes later the cry came down the street 'they're out, they're out!' The guards had been released."

Russell H. Coates, who celebrated his 96th birthday in Levittown, pauses briefly during the festivities to chat with members of the family. With him are his daughter, Mrs. Murriell Hartman of Levittown; his granddaughter, Mrs. John J. Crawley, 29 action was arranged with a contract she signed.

Beckert and Defense Attorney William Carlin were agreeing to a stipulation that each of the 18 other witnesses made the same arrangements when Judge Biester noted that Mrs. Lena Pascale, 309 Washington St., Bristol, was making "vehement" gestures.

Mrs. Pascale took the witness stand and said she bought a knitting machine for $399 from Santore and was to get free yarn for three months. She said she did not sign an agreement.

Carlin told the court an agreement was signed by Mrs. Pascale and he could produce a copy of it. Mrs. Pascale repeated she did not sign an agreement, but then said she signed a loan.

Testify From Seats

Other witnesses testified from their seats in the court room. They were Helen Harner, Elmer Dalrymple and Michael DeBella.

The trial was continued for an undetermined time, for the defense to produce the contracts or copies of them. Bristol Borough Police Chief Vincent Faragalli is prosecutor in the case.

'Two Term' Stopper Rapped By Dilworth

HARRISBURG (UPI) — Mayor Richardson Dilworth of Philadelphia has rapped a restriction in his city's charter which prevents a mayor from serving more than two consecutive terms.

Dilworth, who is a candidate for a second term in the May 19 primary, told the annual conference of the Pennsylvania Political Science and Public Administration last night that many candidates are capable of serving more than two terms as mayor.

"If an official is not qualified to continue as an executive or administrator the situation would be remedied by the people themselves," he said.
